I Write

I write to water grasses
Draw up flowers from the mud
Recreate ourselves
Unravel inner mysteries
Plotting a course through cosmic messages
Gather old bones
Ancestral relics
Shape planting songs
Spark life breath into seeds
Waiting to rise again

I write to rename
This source that incites us
Give up voice to sound
Pathways to rebirth
Towards roots of precious trees
Where we begin
Awaken the philosopher stone
Lines in our hands
Always swimming up river
Against the current
In the undercurrent
Leaping waterfalls
Born of Nile

I write to define a circumference
You cannot find on a wall
Knowable only in the river
In between shadows in the light
Where root and water meet.

© 1998 Sandra María Esteves
Printed in Contrapunto In the Open Field